Demand appeared in sufficient volume on the declines to hold them in check. The stock market, as a consequence, was a dull and listless affair, but ended at declines.

This was due partly to the closing of the London stock exchange for a holiday. The demand from that source was so important an element in rallying prices from the acute depression of the latter part of last week that speculators were indisposed to pursue operations in the absence of information on the immediate attitude of London buyers to American stocks. Rev. J. H. Selden Preaches to Union Service of Congregationalists—Rev. B. U. Hatfield at Baptist Church.

At the union service of the Congregational churches neld Sunday morning at Broadway Congregational church the preacher was Rev. J. H. Selden of Greenwich, and he pleased a good sized audience with a vigorous sermon upon The Broad Outlook. Beyond the education that schools and universities can give, he said, there was need for that broad. Clear and sane outlook that shall view things in their proper balance. He referred to the changed attitud, towards labor and the man who works, but said that the man who makes himself a slave to the man who makes himself a slave to the man who makes himself as slave to the man who makes himself as slave to the most out of life. Men are rising to put himself out of the running to get the most out of life. Men are rising to righteousness has behind it the powers of Jesus, and it is an ever-increasing righteousness has behind it the powers of Jesus, and it is an ever-increasing marvel the presence of Jesus and the part he plays in life today. But there is also the element of personal right-eousness. How often are the hands of Jesus tied by the weakness, care-eshingten today, 3 to 4. Rube he locals for the first time in a lowers. If we are to find ourselves, we are to come under the quickening influence and transforming power of the fellowship of Jesus. Rev. Byron U Hatfield of Newburgh N. Y., formerly stationed at Mysti and New London, occupied the pulpi at the Central Baptist church on Sun at the Central Baptist church on Sunday morning and evening, and his forceful sermons were listened to by attentive congregations. For his evening sermon, Rev. Mr. Hatfield found his text in John x:2. He calleth his dwn sheep by name and leadeth them out. The speaker prefaced his remarks by the story of the eastern traveler, who, observing that there were no doors on the sheepfolds asked the shpherd his reason. Drawing himself up to his full height the shepherd replied. "I am the door." For through the long night he sat and slept in the doorway, so that no sheep could stray eveland.

in but past him. And so Jesus Christ has placed himself as a keeper between us and the world outside. No one can go astray from the fold but past the love and care of the Good Shepherd, and no harm or danger can get into the fold unless past Him.

This picture of the shepherd, who gives his life if need be, for his sheep, emphasizes his tenderness, personal, familiar, kind. But beside this tenderness there flashes a neglected truth less there flashes a neglected truth hat has been less emphasized. He calleth his sheep by name and leadeth them out. Out from the shelter of the fold, which is necessary for their refuge and protection from the storm and for their safety from wild beasts, he leads them out to the green fields and the refreshing streams, but also to the places of greater danger.
So the Good Shepherd leads us out into the greater possibilities of daily life. The timid sheep needs the wide fields and new pastures, and there can be no larger Christian life for us if experiences, to gerat avenues of truth in which our feet have never trod, to heights we have never climbed, to valleys we have never explored.

We are to go out as workers, doing the tasks that are not completed, and if we cannot do anything new, we can at least do the old better.
